The re-nomination of Seth Low by Republicans, Democrats and other political organizations for mayor of New York is an endorsement of his administration well deserved. Those organizations have declared for clean, honest government and leading Democratic papers in that city say Mayor Low has come nearer keeping his pledges and promises than any mayor that city has had for fifty years. With such endorsements and such advocacies of his re-election there is hardly the shadow of a doubt but that he will be retained in the office by an overwhelming majority. The fact that so many independent Democrats have come out strongly for him as against Tammany is an indication that the latter organization is not so strong at home as it formerly was, and those outside of the metropolis should profit by their example and no longer look to Tammany for advice and leadership.

The situation in municipal affairs in Parkersburg at the present time seems to be strictly on the pig, as a slang phrase has it. The administration has abandoned its splendid system of street cleaning, and as the result, it is not uncommon to see merchants out scraping the waste matter into piles. At one particular point there is a big pile of waste, and there may be seen a placard on it, announcing the fact that that pile of real estate is for sale. That sort of economy may save money, but it is dangerous to health, and all the money in existence will not of itself restore health. The state board of health ought to take the matter in hand and make the Parkersburg administration protect the health of the city.

The State University has started off well. There are no faculty dissensions and no fights thus far among the students. There is promise of harmony throughout the year, and, as one result, there will be earnest work. Every citizen in West Virginia who is interested in education hopes the present situation will obtain until the end of the scholastic year, and every one connected with the institution should put forth his best efforts to that end.

While the Democratic papers are busy saying President Roosevelt is opposed to organized labor and the working man in general, they should not forget to recall what he did for them in the great coal strike in Pennsylvania last year, nor should they overlook the warm admiration and friendship John Mitchell, president of the United Mine Workers, has for him.

The Democratic paper is booming Stuart F. Reed for the Republican nomination for congress, and admits that there is no possible show for Democratic success in the district. We agree with it that Mr. Reed would make a good congressman. We also agree with it on the other proposition.
